

THE PROTECTION OF HUMAN DIGNITY AND THE RIGHT TO ONE'S OWN IMAGE

L. MANEA<sup>1</sup> A. MANEA<sup>1</sup>

Abstract: When the legislator, no matter the democratic state he belongs to, tries to settle the freedom of expression, as a fundamental right recognized and guaranteed through juridical instruments in any state of law, he must take into consideration the necessity of protecting the reputation and dignity of a human being. Freedom of expression is guaranteed in any democratic society but still there are some restraints in order to protect the right of a person to one's own dignity, to honour, private life and the right to one's own image.

Key words: freedom of expression, right to information, dignity, honour.
